

Trevor Elcock

Trevor Elcock is a passionate canine sports enthusiast with over twenty years of experience, having been introduced to the field by a friend in 2000. He became an active member, handler, and trainer within the United Schutzhund Club of America, where he has cultivated a particular affinity for German Shepherds and Rottweilers, specializing in protection, evaluation, and behavior management. Mr. Elcock's instinctual understanding of canine behavior has made him a highly sought-after trainer among those engaged in the sport.

In 2018, driven by his dedication to the field and a desire to support the growth of others, he applied and was accepted into the elite Judges Program. Since then, he has successfully judged numerous club trials, including the USCA Nationals, Working Dog and Regionals Championships. Notably, he served as a judge for the Asia National Championship in South Korea for the years 2022, 2023, and 2024. Mr. Elcock has quickly established a reputation as a fair and consistent judge, known for his extensive knowledge of the rules and eye for details.

In addition to his passion for canine sports, Trevor proudly served in the United States Military (Army) for eight years and is a retired police officer with the New York Police Department. He is also a professional photographer and the owner of N3 Photography. In his spare time, he is a dedicated martial arts practitioner, having earned his black belt degree in Wing Chun Kung Fu, and teaches privately. He spends A LOT of his spare time practicing playing the saxophone an additional hobby he recently picked up.
